

Welcome to the latest edition of Active Silicon bulletins, our News Focus. We've compiled some of our most interesting recent news posts to keep you up to date with developments from us, and from the wider vision industry.

Technology in farming is getting fishy

Fish farming is facing unprecedented challenges as demand for food grows while global supplies are impacted by over-fishing, increased regulation and environmental degradation. Read more about the solutions that vision technology has to offer.

Read more >

Active Silicon expands

We've opened our new production and operations facility in Langley, UK. The additional capacity of this extra facility will allow us to meet recent increased demand more efficiently. Find out more about Active Silicon and how we operate on our About Us page.

Read more >

UKIVA's Machine Vision Conference

UKIVA staged their industry conference in Milton Keynes, UK, on 6th June this year, and we enjoyed being part of it. We gave a presentation on HD digital video transmission as well as displaying our computer vision products, you can read more about our demo in our news story.

Read more >

It's farming, but not as we know it

Agriculture 4.0, Farming 4.0, AgriTech and Smart Farming are all recognized terms being used to refer to the adoption of advanced technology to improve yields and feed the world. We look at some of the options being developed by Tech companies large and small.

Read more >

When computer vision blends physics with biology...

Nature really is amazing, and bio-inspired technology is now looking to encompass characteristics found in birds, insects and sea creatures to enhance artificial vision. Read our story to understand more about these exciting developments.

Read more >

Another successful Machine Vision Roadshow

On 17th May, the 2019 Machine Vision Roadshow truck closed its doors for the last time this year. We've enjoyed meeting all the engineers and system developers who came to share knowledge and learn from our industry experts. View event photos on our Instagram page.

Read more >

Active Silicon is a leading manufacturer of imaging products, embedded systems and custom solutions. If you would like to stay informed of upcoming events, products and news in general, then please follow us on one of our social media channels below.

Contact us

Connect with us     