

Welcome to the latest edition of Active Silicon's News Focus. We've compiled some of the recent news posts trending on our social media channels to keep you up to date with developments from us, and from the wider vision industry.

Outlook 2021

As the world looks to recover from the economic and emotional impact of a global pandemic, Active Silicon is proud to be forging ahead with new innovations and renewed energy. We take a look our journey to 2021 and expectations for the year ahead.

Read more >

Global shutter camera with powerful 36x optical zoom

The Harrier 36x AF-Zoom Cameras combine a powerful 36x optical zoom lens, a Sony global shutter CMOS sensor and multiple video outputs to deliver a first-class 1080p/60 block camera solution. Competitively priced cameras to capture distortion free images of moving objects.

Read more >

Asia BDM drives sustained growth

Ye Liu joined Active Silicon as Business Development Manager, Asia Pacific in July 2019. 6 months later, his region became the focal point in a health crisis impacting every corner of the globe. Read more about his work in the APAC region.

Read more >

Imaging surgical procedures

The global market for AI-based clinical applications for use in medical imaging was forecast at nearly US$1.5bn by 2024. We gathered some fascinating case studies. Learn more about imaging of real-time surgical procedures.

Read more >

The advantages of CoaXPress v2.0

Vision Systems Design recently published an interesting article looking at some of the less well-known features of the latest version of CoaXPress. As contributors to the creation of this vision standard, we're keen to bring these benefits to your attention.

Read more >

Rolling shutter or global shutter - why it matters

CMOS imaging sensors are at the heart of every industrial camera system, but they come in two variants – rolling shutter or global shutter. Each type of shutter has its advantages. Let's take a look at the differences between them to help you to decide which is going to work best for your application.

Read more >

Active Silicon is a leading manufacturer of imaging products and embedded vision systems. If you would like to stay informed of upcoming events, products and news in general, then please follow us on one of our social media channels below.

Contact us

Connect with us     